Founded in 1979, Ifri is the principal institution for independent research and debate in France and is dedicated to the analysis of international issues and global governance.

Ifri's Center for Migration and Citizenship, founded in 2005, aims at contributing to the study of migration as a structuring dimension of international relations and at analyzing new forms of citizenship in an increasingly interdependent global society.

Within our partnership with OCP Policy Center, a Moroccan policy-oriented think tank whose mission is to contribute to knowledge sharing and to enrich reflection on key economic and international relations issues, considered as essential to the economic and social development of Morocco, and more broadly to the African continent, we have been working closely together on migration issues.

Among the latest publications:

Matthieu TARDIS, "European Union Partnerships with African Countries on Migration: A Common Issue with Conflicting Interests", Notes de l'Ifri, March 2018. (also available in French)

Corinne BALLEIX, « Migrations : l'Europe à l'épreuve de la crise italienne », Notes de l'Ifri, juillet 2018.

Abdelhak BASSOU, Amal EL OUASSIF, « Investir dans le capital humain "migrant" », Policy Brief, septembre 2018.

Matthieu TARDIS, « Gouvernance mondiale des migrations : les enjeux du Global Compact for Migration », Notes de l'Ifri, to be published in January 2019.

Description:

The global dialogue on migration is frequently stalled due to contradictory interests and positions between the countries of the North (Europe and North America) and the South. However, these positions do not take into account changes in migration profiles of countries, which can be departure, transit and receiving countries. Can multilateralism break with the North-South paradigm? Moreover, what is the added value of non-state actors (diaspora, NGOs, companies) or infra-state actors (local authorities) in the global governance of migration?

Administrative requirement:

Registration and a badge for the speakers and organizers
